

News highlights

- Equity markets recorded solid gains for the week, while celebrating the 125-year anniversary of the Dow Jones Industrial index, with China's equity market, growth stocks and cyclicals performing the best.
- High volatility stocks with a large retail participation (so-called "meme" names) made a vociferous come back with GameStop and AMC entertainment seeing explosive moves on the upside. Even more staggering on Thursday last week, AMC's stock accounted for nearly two-thirds of the consolidated turnover on the NYSE.
- From the lens of the fixed income market and observing the small decline of the 10-year Treasury yield during the week, investors appeared to be reassured by Fed officials' comments on the transitory forces at play with regard to inflation.
- In the US, negotiations on an infrastructure spending plan continued with Republicans unveiling a $928 billion counteroffer to President Biden's proposal of $1.7 trillion. On Friday, President Biden also unveiled an aspirational (requiring Congress to enact it) $6 trillion budget for the fiscal year 2022 and total annual spending that is set to increase to $8.2 trillion by 2031.
- After months of delay, all 27 EU countries have finally ratified the legal instrument that underpins the €750bn recovery fund, enabling the Commission to borrow the cash on market.
- It was also a landmark week for climate activists with the Dutch court ruling that Royal Dutch Shell must cut carbon emissions by 45% by 2030 and investors ousting two Exxon directors in a historic win for pro-climate campaigns.
